GREETINGS FROM COUNCILMEMBER KENDRA BROOKS

Hello!

I'm Councilmember Kendra Brooks. As an At-Large Councilmember, I was elected to represent and serve all of Philadelphia. If you live in Philly, I'm your representative on City Council. I'm a Black mom and grandmom from North Philly, and I know from my own life that working families like mine need opportunities, resources, and programming in order to thrive. Growing up, public libraries saved my life, and I have always fought for my children and grandchildren to have access to the spaces and programs that will help them to stay safe, find their passions, and learn the value of new experiences and strong communities.

Too often, our City has sent the message that we do not value our children. When our children see crumbling schools, closed libraries, and pervasive violence, they get the message that our City does not value them and will not invest in their futures. I ran for office to change that. In years past, I've won increases in funding for public libraries, schools, recreation centers, job programs, and affordable housing – the basic services working families need to thrive. And this year, I'm fighting for a transformative city budget that builds on these successes and calls for even deeper investments in young people, their families, and their neighborhoods.

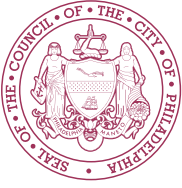

It's time our city put our kids first and guarantees safety we can feel in every single zip code. That's why my office created this City-wide Youth Opportunities Directory. It's your guide to all the opportunities our city has to offer to young people. Whether trying out martial arts or learning to swim in a local pool, our children deserve to feel safe, valued, and hopeful about the future.

I encourage you to look through this guide and talk to the young people in your life about getting involved in one of the many exciting programs listed in these pages. If you have any questions, or if you would like to add opportunities to this guide, please reach out to my Deputy Chief of Staff, Shakeda Gaines, by calling my office at 215-686-0461.

With hope,

PLAYSTREETS

What We Do

More than 50 years ago, Philadelphia Parks & Recreation started Playstreets. This program closes designated streets to traffic so that kids have a safe place to play when school is out. A key feature of the program are the nutritious meals and snacks provided to children. This is important during the summer months when school meals are not available.

Playstreets take place in every neighborhood of the city. 300 to 350 city streets take part during the summer from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

At each Playstreet:

- Playstreet supervisors open and close the streets to traffic each day.
- Parks & Rec's Summer Food Service Program provides daily lunches or snacks.
- Participants can use free play equipment and supplies.

DHS Intensive Prevention Services (IPS)

If your child, or a child you know, is having issues at school, home, or in the community, Intensive Prevention Services (IPS) can help. IPS is a community-based prevention program offered to youth aged 10 to 19 who are at risk for involvement with the Juvenile Justice System. IPS provides meaningful programming through fun activities, experiences, and community engagement, promoting the healthy development of each child while addressing the behaviors that brought them into the program.

What to expect at IPS

Intensive Prevention Services (IPS) is a community-based prevention program offered to youth aged 10 to 19. IPS provides support to youth who are having issues at school or conflicts at home. The goal is to improve their behavior and prevent them from entering the juvenile justice system.

Through fun activities, meaningful experiences, and community engagement, IPS promotes the healthy development of each child brought into the program. Our providers create safe spaces to nurture the kinds of positive behaviors and skills that lead to healthy development.

Each participant gets a customized service plan to:

- Strengthen their sense of self-worth.
- Enhance life skills.
- Provide academic support.
- Improve relationships at home, at school, and in the community.

Youth are referred to IPS by families, schools, the court system, or the police department. Services are free and located in seven agencies across Philadelphia.

Eligibility

- Youth aged between 10-19
- Youth who are having reoccurring problems at home, school, or in the community
- Youth who are being diverted from arrest via the School Police Diversion Program
- Youth who need a safe space to learn and grow.

About Councilmember Kendra Brooks

Councilmember Brooks embraces a community member at a rally.

Kendra Brooks is a Councilmember At-Large, representing residents across the entire city. As a legislator, she works to pass laws that address inequality, empower residents, and strengthen communities. Some of her legislative accomplishments include passing the Renters' Access Act, which reduced discrimination in the rental application and screening process; expanding protections for people seeking or providing abortions in Philadelphia; winning COVID-19 paid sick leave for workers, and fighting to return dozens of community gardens across the city back to community ownership.

Kendra's background is in community organizing. She spent years fighting for fully-funded public schools and against school closures. She is a trained restorative justice facilitator with a passion for tackling difficult issues and aligning people around shared interests. Her priorities include advocating for housing as a human right; creating safe, healthy neighborhoods in every zip code; and fighting for workers' rights and an economy that works for everyone.
